

---

A Definition

Posted by jeannine - 2006/11/02 15:52

---

Around the world, the most common definition of media literacy is the ability to “access, analyse, evaluate and use” media. However, media literacy is so much more. It’s the ability to elicit critical thinking and appreciation of media as familiar and global culture through discourse and discovery. Its purpose is to create active participants who are aware of the potential for bias and misrepresentation, recognizing that media forms are used as tools in constructing reality.

- From Wikipedia

---